

“Opening the world...”

Степанова Лилиана

When I think about importance of learning foreign languages, I always remember the words of M.E.Nikolaev. Once, he said the person who knows only native language like a bird with one wing and the person knowing foreign language is a bird with two wings.

He can fly wherever he wants and do whatever he wants.

I think it's true. So it is very useful to learn foreign languages. Knowledge of foreign languages helps us to develop friendship and understanding among people. It opens new horizons for you.

I study English. It's a long and slow process that takes a lot of time and efforts. And it's very interesting for me to open culture and traditions of nation. I am very interested in the Royal family. I admired Princess Diana and her life style.

Language itself makes no sense and has no meaning outside the cultural setting in which it is spoken. Culture introduction should be integrated with language teaching in many aspects and at multiple levels so that learners' intercultural communicative skills can be enhanced.

As for me I'd like to connect my life with the English language and that's why I am interested in different English contests, conferences, meetings.

My deep dream from the childhood was travelling around the world.

“Do you speak English?” – With this phrase begins the conversation between two people, that speak different languages to find a common one.

It's very good when you hear: “Yes, I do”, and start talking. People from different countries and nations have to get along well with the progress in the world trade and technology as well as with each other.

Overall there can be no denying that learning languages is wholly positive for individuals and society and that it is highly important to know more than one language.

In conclusion I'd like to say, if more people were multilingual, the world would be happier and more prosperous place.

And I'm very delighted that our first president fully understands the importance of learning foreign languages and he devotes his words towards young generation.

Because future of our country is in our hands.
